The Ancestors

of

1. JOHN RUSSELL was born in England around 1615. His wife's name was Elizabeth. Their children were John (1640) and Mary. It is possible that John Russell was the "Br. Russell" who was arrested in London in 1638 for his liberal religious doctrines. He was in the first group of families to settle in Woburn, Massachusetts, in 1640, being one of the signers of the original "Town Orders". He was a cordwainer (shoemaker) and was admitted a freeman in the Colony in 1644. He held one or more of the following town offices from 1650 till his death in 1676: selectman, sealer of leather, constable, commissioner for the rates, surveyor, commissioner for division of lands.

He was for a number of years a deacon in the Congregational Church, and is sometimes referred to in the town records as "Deacon Russell", but in 1669 he joined the Baptists, then an oppressed minority, and became an Elder of that church in Boston. Prior to that he had been the author of a petition in 1653 to the General Court signed by twenty-nine residents of Woburn requesting the repeal of a law forbidding lay preaching. (This petition is in the Thomas Hutchinson Collection in the Massachusetts Historical Society and is reproduced in Massachusetts Historical Collections, Third Series, Vol. I.) John Russell's house was on the site of a house now standing on the south side of Kilby Street, Woburn (40 Kilby Street), between the Middlesex Canal and the railroad, the main part of his farm of ninety-four acres being across the street from the house. When it was impossible for the Woburn Baptists to attend church with their brethren on Noddle's Island in Boston (where the church was located to escape jurisdiction of the Middlesex Court which had forbidden such meetings), they held meetings at his house. In 1671 he was tried by the Court of Assistants (the highest court of the Colony) and was imprisoned at Cambridge for several months for persisting in the Baptist faith. His application for release in his handwriting on the ground of ill health and without recanting his beliefs is in the Middlesex Superior Court Archives. He is referred to by a conterporary as "a gracious, wise and holy man."

His first wife, Elizabeth, died December 16, 1644, and he married May 13, 1645, Elizabeth Baker, who died January 17, 1689. John Russell died June 1, 1676, and his will is on file in the Middlesex Probate Court, No. 19643. He was buried in King's Chapel Burial Ground, Boston, where a tablet stands simply marked, "John Russell".

2. JOHN RUSSELL, JR., was born in 1640, the year that his parents came from England. He married October 31, 1661, Sarah Champney the daughter of John and Joan Champney of Cambridge. Their children were: John (1662), Joseph (1663), Samuel (1667), Sarah (1670), Elizbeth (1672), Jonathan (1675), Thomas (1677), and Ruth. Like his father, he was a cordwainer and was elected surveyor and sealer of leather in Woburn for a number of years prior to his moving to Boston. In addition to his father's land, he owned one hundred and nine acres.

He was one of a group including Henry Dunster, the founder and first president of Harvard College, that founded the Baptist Church in Boston in 1665. Dunster was forced to resign as president of Harvard because of his persistence in the belief with other Baptists that only persons who are old enough to be capable of understanding the tenets of Christianity should be baptized. John Russell, Jr., was placed on trial with his father for his "schismatical beliefs". On the death of Gould, the first pastor, John Russell, Jr., was ordained the second pastor of the Baptist Church in Boston July 28, 1679, and moved from Woburn to Boston.

He was the author of "Russell's Narrative" (published in London in 1680), a reply to an attack by Increase Mather on the Baptists and an account of the early Baptist Church in Boston. Only two copies of this work are known to be now in existence. It is reprinted in full in Nathan Wood's "History of the First Baptist Church of Boston".

John Russell, Jr., died December 21, 1680. An inventory of his estate is in the Middlesex Probate Court, No. 19644. His burial place in King's Chapel Burial Ground is marked by a stone somewhat more elaborate than his father's. His wife died April 25, 1696.

3. JOHN RUSSELL III was born August 1, 1662, in Woburn. He married December 21, 1682, Elizabeth Palmer, the daughter of John Palmer[2] (John Palmer[1]) and Elizabeth Alger[2] (Andrew Alger[1]). Their children were: John (1683), Joseph (1685), Stephen (1687), Elizabeth (1690), Samuel (1692), Sarah (1694), Ruth (1699), Jonathan (1700), Mary (1703) and Thomas (1705).

John Russell III lived in Woburn in the original Russell house. Like his father and grandfather, he was a cordwainer, but unlike them, he was a Congregationalist. He took part in the Canadian expedition of 1690. He died July 26, 1717. (See Middlesex Probate, No. 19646.) His wife, Elizabeth, died in 1723.

4. JOSEPH RUSSELL was born October 3, 1685, in Woburn. He married November 3, 1712, Jane Kendall, born September 10, 1692, the daughter of Thomas Kendall[2] (Francis Kendall[1]) and Ruth Blodgett[3] (Samuel[2], Thomas[1]). She had a twin, Jabez. Their children were: Joseph (1713), Abigail (1717), Thomas (1719), Sarah (1722), Ruth (1725), Jabez (1728), and Ephraim (1730).

They moved from Woburn to Lexington in 1724, living on a farm in the north part of the town. As was frequently the case when outsiders took up residence without previously obtaining permission, an order was made by the Selectmen of Lexington ordering him and his family to remove from the town. Presumably, however, he gave them satisfactory evidence of his good character, as he was admitted to the Lexington church and continued to live there until his death.

His eldest son, Joseph, was killed in Major Roger's expedition to Crown Point in the French War in 1758.

He died December 20, 1763. His will is on file in the Middlesex Probate Court, No. 19663. His wife, Jane, died July 15, 1778.

5. EPHRAIM RUSSELL was born December 18, 1730, in Lexington. He married January 9, 1755, Miriam Wheeler, born January 3, 1733, the daughter of Francis Wheeler[4] (William[3], William[2], George[1] -- most prominent early inhabitant of Concord) and Mary Merriam[3] (Nathaniel[4], John[3], Joseph[2], William[1] -- of Kent, England) of Bedford and Concord. Their children were: Ephraim (1755), Solomon (1758), Nathaniel (1759), Calvin (1762), Joseph (1763), Dorcas (1766), Luther (1770), Rhoda (1775), and Sarah (1775).

He, too, was a cordwainer and in addition a schoolteacher. He moved with his family to Groton in 1767 and lived on a farm just south of the present site of Groton Academy. He told the Rev. Paul Coffin in 1798 that "he lived in a house at Groton, the owner of which was captivated by the Indians, about ninety years past and brought to Norridgewogg, where he built the first mess-house which the Indians and French first had there. This pleased his new masters so well that they gave him his redemption."

His sons, Ephraim, Solomon, Nathaniel and Calvin, fought in the Revolution, the eldest of these being twenty years old and the youngest thirteen years old at the outbreak of the war. Nathaniel died at Valley Forge.

A suit was commenced against him in 1771 by the Rev. Henry Caner, the Royalist minister of King's Chapel, who fled to England upon the outbreak of the Revolutionary War. Mr. Caner recovered judgment in the amount of sixty pounds. The basis for the suit is not disclosed by the records.

Ephraim Russell moved to Bloomfield (Skowhegan), Maine with his son, Calvin, around 1796, and taught school there. He lived on the road on the south side of the river from Skowhegan to Norridgewock.

6. EPHRAIM RUSSELL, JR., was born November 6, 1755, in Lexington. He married in 1776 Mary Porter, who was born December 17, 1758, the daughter of Ebenezer Porter[5] (Ebenezer[4], Ebenezer[3], John[2], Richard[1] -- Weymouth 1635) and Tabitha Pratt[5] (Ebenezer[4], Ebenezer[3], Samuel[2], Mathew[1] -- of Weymouth) of Weymouth. Her brother, Ezekiel Porter, settled on Porter Hill, Farmington. Their children were: Ebenezer (1777), Nathaniel (1779), William (1780), Sarah (1782), Mary (1784), Joseph (1787), Dorcas (1789), Betsy (1792), John (1794) and James (1795).

He was, like his ancestors, a cordwainer. He was a Minute Man in Capt. Henry Farwell's company, Col. William Prescott's regiment, and marched to Concord on the alarm of April 19, 1775. He fought in the battle of Bunker Hill and in expeditions to Rhode Island in 1777 and 1778. His powder horn is still in existence. The diary of his neighbor, Amos Farnsworth, describing the battle of Bunker Hill and the events connected with Farwell's company preceding and following the battle is in the Groton Historical Society.

Ephraim, Jr., moved from Groton to Townsend, Massachusetts, and later lived with his son, James, in Temple, Maine. He died November 11, 1831, and is buried in the Sandbank Cemetery in Farmington, Maine.

7. COL. JAMES RUSSELL was born December 30, 1795, in Townsend. He married Prudence Barrett, who was born July 12, 1794, the daughter of Benjamin Barrett[6] (Benjamin[5], Benjamin[4], Benjamin[3], Humphrey[2], Humphrey[1] -- of Concord) and Hannah Scripture[4] (Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Samuel[1]).

He moved to Lunenburg, Massachusetts, and in 1819 to Temple, Maine. He built the red house which is now standing, the second on the left beyond the cemetery on the road from Temple Village to Porter Hill.

He was a large, powerful man, weighing three hundred and fifty pounds. He was a Democrat and a Universalist. He died April 4, 1856, and his wife October 18, 1872. They are buried in the Temple Village Cemetery.
